

Notice of Privacy Practices

THIS NOTICE DESCRIBES HOW MEDICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU MAY BE USED AND DISCLOSED AND HOW YOU CAN GET ACCESS TO THIS INFORMATION. PLEASE REVIEW IT CAREFULLY.

Your Information. Your Rights. Our Responsibilities. This notice applies to the information that we have about your health care and services that you receive through APD. APD is required by law to notify you of our legal duties and privacy practices, your rights, and describe the ways we may access, use, and disclose your protected health information. We must maintain the privacy of your health information and follow the terms of this notice.

Your Rights. When it comes to your health information, you have certain rights. You have the right to:

- Get a copy of your health records. You may review or get a copy of your health records except for psychotherapy notes, information compiled as part of a legal case, or as otherwise excluded by law. APD may impose a reasonable fee for copying, supplying, preparing, and mailing the requested records.
- Ask us to correct or change your health information if you believe it is incorrect or incomplete. Ask us how to do this. We may say no to your request but we will tell you in writing within 60 days.
- Confidential communications. If you ask us to contact you in a confidential way (for example, at a certain phone number, email address, or designated mailing address) we may grant reasonable requests.
- Ask APD to limit what health information we use or share. We do not have to agree if it would affect your care. If we do agree, we will limit the information unless it needs to be shared in an emergency.
- Get a list of those with whom APD has shared your health information. You can ask, in writing, for a list of the times we have shared your information (“accounting”), who we shared it with, and why it was shared, within the past 6 years, except for when it is used to carry out your treatment, pay for your care, for health care operations, disclosures you asked for, or prohibited by law. You are entitled to one free accounting a year.
- Receive a paper copy of this notice. You are entitled to a paper copy of this notice.
- Choose someone to act for you. Your legal guardian or someone with a medical power of attorney for you may exercise make choices about your health information.
- Receive notice of a breach. You are entitled to be notified if your protected health information has been accessed, acquired, used, or disclosed as result of a breach within 30 days of the Agency becoming aware of such a breach.
- File a complaint. If you feel APD has violated your rights, you may file a complaint with our office or the Secretary of the US Department of Health and Human Services. You will not be retaliated against for filing a complaint.

Our Uses and Disclosures of Your Protected Health Information. APD is permitted to use or disclose your health information for treatment, payment, and health care operations. If you are an APD Home and Community-Based Services (“HCBS”) Medicaid Waiver applicant or recipient, APD uses your health information to determine your eligibility for the HCBS Medicaid Waiver program and to determine the amount of assistance that you need for your care. We also use it to manage the HCBS Medicaid Waiver program.

Here are some examples of how we typically access, use, and/or disclose your health information:

- Sharing information about your diagnosis and care needs to determine your initial or ongoing eligibility for the HCBS Medicaid Waiver program, as well as to coordinate supported living services and placement in a care facility.
- Sharing information about your health care needs to pay for your health care products and services, including federal and state funding programs such as Medicaid.
- Disclosing your health information to appropriate APD staff members, business associates, volunteers, and/or other government agencies who are involved in your treatment so that they can perform health care operations and oversight, including evaluating the performance of people involved in your care.

How else can we use or share your health information? APD is allowed or required to share your information in other ways without your written authorization—usually in ways that promote public health, safety, and research. We must meet many conditions in the law before we can share your information for these purposes. Examples include:

- Disclosing information to a family member or another person to assist you if you are unable to tell us your preference, such as if you are unconscious or during an emergency, if we believe it is in your best interest.
- Sharing information that is needed to lessen a serious and imminent threat to health or safety.
- Reporting suspected abuse, neglect, or domestic violence, and preventing or reducing threats to you or another person's health or safety.
- Sharing information with other state or federal agencies. For example, the US Department of Health and Human Services ("HHS"), Federal Emergency Management Agency ("FEMA"), the Centers for Disease Control ("CDC"), the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration ("AHCA"), the Florida Department of Children and Families ("DCF"), the Florida Department of Health ("DOH"), and other similar agencies.
- Conducting research that benefits persons with developmental disabilities and/or the Medicaid program.
- Disclosing information for vital statistics, or with an organ procurement organization, coroner, medical examiner, or funeral director.
- Disclosing information for workers' compensation claims, law enforcement purposes, and functions such as military, national security, and presidential protection services.
- Responding to a court order, administrative order, or a subpoena.
- Disclosing your information to the extent it is required by state or federal law.

Other Uses and Disclosures. Other uses and disclosures not described in this notice will be made only with your written authorization. If you give us written authorization, you may revoke it at any time. This includes authorizing us to share information with your family, close friends, or others involved with your care.

- We will never sell your information or use it for marketing purposes unless you give us written permission.

Our Responsibilities. We are required by law to maintain the privacy and security of your protected health information. We are required to follow the duties and privacy practices described in this notice and give you a copy of it. This includes letting you know promptly if a breach occurs that may have compromised the privacy or security of your health information. We will not use or share your information other than described in this notice unless you tell us we can in writing. If you tell us we can, you may change your mind at any time.

Changes to this notice. APD reserves the right to change the terms of this notice; and, the changes apply to all information that we have about you. The new notice will be on our website and we will mail a copy to you.
